Adobe Express for Education

Using Adobe Express through Canvas.

Give students more structured opportunities to create and demonstrate what they've learned in more visually appealing ways with Adobe Express and Canvas. With the Adobe Express External Tool, it's easy to assign creative projects directly to students, provide them a one-click easy method to turn in, and easily give feedback in ways that build student engagement and motivation.

What can I do with Canvas/Adobe Express integration?

With the Adobe Express assignment integration in Canvas, you can empower your students to customize or create their own graphics, posters, videos, web pages, and visual reports all within your existing assignment flow.

Follow these easy steps to unleash your students' creativity:

1. Once you've started a new Canvas assignment and filled in the details, scroll down to Submission Type. Select External Tool and then choose Adobe Express.

2. You'll be signed in to Adobe Express using your district credentials, and a browser window will come up. If you've used Adobe Express before, your projects will be listed in the window.

Follow these easy steps to unleash your students' creativity (continued):

3. Choose an existing file from your Adobe Express library. If you want to make additional edits, click Edit.

4. Once your file is ready, return to Canvas and click on the thumbnail for the file you want to assign to students. Click attach.

5. Save and publish your Canvas assignment.

6. You (and your students) will see the Adobe Express file as an attachment on the published Canvas assignment.

7. When your students view their Canvas assignment, they will have the option to open a copy of your attachment with Open Adobe Express—think of it like a template they can start from.

8. When they are ready to submit the project, they click Share and Turn in to Canvas.

9. You'll see your students' submissions in the Canvas Speedgrader.
