Madison Magazine Announces Best Places to Work Winners

Madison, WI— Madison Magazine’s October issue reveals the results of its annual Best Places to Work survey, featuring 35 companies across a variety of industry sectors and ranging in employment base from 10 employees to more than 100.

The survey, conducted by Quantum Workplace of Omaha, Nebraska, measures six areas of employee engagement: communications and resources, individual needs, manager effectiveness, personal engagement, team dynamics and trust in leadership. Companies in all three categories of small, medium and large scored high in the areas of trust in senior leadership and team dynamics. The Madison region performed slightly above the national average, up from last year when the region dipped slightly below the national average.

“In these changing times, it’s clear that this year’s top companies are exploring ways to meet the needs of not only their business, but also their employees,” says editor Karen Lincoln Michel. “The fact that trust in senior leadership is rated high seems to suggest that employees like the direction that their leaders are taking them.”

The October 2017 issue of Madison Magazine highlights the top 35 companies, which were divided into three groups based on their number of employees.

Best Places to Work is sponsored by TDS.
